

Newsbytes

The First Watch

August 12, 2020

No. 982

Since 2001

Newzbytes is a ministry of Calvary Chapel of Appleton

www.ccapleton.org

---

“Let us be alert to the season in which we are living. It is the season of the Blessed Hope, calling for us to cut our ties with the world and build ourselves on this One who will soon appear. He is our hope—a Blessed Hope enabling us to rise above our times and fix our gaze upon Him.” Tozer

---

This happened on the 9th of Av, 2020:

Israeli Flag Flown on Temple Mount: First Since 1967

Thus said the lord of Hosts, the God of Yisrael: Mend your ways and your actions, and I will let you dwell in this place. Jeremiah 7:3 (The Israel Bible™)

by Adam Eliyahu Berkowitz | Jul 31, 2020

A major step towards fixing the broken heart of the Jewish people on the Temple Mount was made on Tish B'Av, the day commemorating the destruction of the Temples: the Israeli flag was displayed for the first time since Israel conquered its holiest site in the 1967 Six-Day War.

Despite coronavirus restrictions and threats of Muslim violence, almost 1,000 Jews ascended to the Temple Mount on Tisha B'Av. Among them was Chaim Brosh, a leader of the Students for the Temple Mount organization. As he was waiting to enter the Temple Mount Compound, Brosh saw that some friends had an Israeli flag. He has wanted to display an Israeli flag on the Temple Mount for many years so he thought that he would try to fulfill his dream. Jews undergo scrupulous security checks before entering which include checking any bags or items carried onto the mount. Religious items and books are confiscated as are any items displaying Israeli nationalism. Brosh folded up the flag and put it in his pocket, hoping the police would not notice.

Normally, Jews are restricted to a limited clockwise route and required to move quickly. To honor the day of mourning for the Temples, Brosh requested and, surprisingly, was granted permission to make a counter-clockwise circuit. In the first part of his tour of the site, Brosh withdrew the flag from his pocket and held it up for all to see.

“A policeman approached me and asked me to put the flag back into my pocket,” Brosh said. They did not arrest me or even confiscate the flag.”

A similar attempt on Jerusalem Day in 2018 ended in Muslim violence and the police arresting the Jews.

“This is the first time that a Jew has waved an Israeli flag on the Temple Mount and the police did not arrest him,” Brosh emphasized.

When the IDF conquered the Temple Mount in 1967, Motta Gur, the commander of the IDF forces that unified Jerusalem, had an Israeli flag hoisted over the Dome of the Rock. Moshe Dayan, who personally oversaw the war in Jerusalem, immediately ordered the flag to be removed.

Brosh continued his tour of the site and once again displayed the flag. Two Waqf representatives approached Brosh and began to berate him but the Israeli police distanced them from the group of Jews. This is also highly uncharacteristic of normal procedures in which Jewish religious rights are usually forfeit to appease Muslim aggression.

“It could be that the policemen were affected by the holy day or it could be they were affected by the anniversary of the expulsion of Gush Katif,” Brosh said. “No person in uniform wants to think that he is the oppressor of his own people.”

“It is important to note that this was a decision by the policemen on-site,” Brosh said. “On a different day, with slightly different conditions, the policemen on duty might not permit a flag or any other deviations from the status quo. The Muslims had threatened mass riots on Tisha B’Av and this did not materialize. So there was a lot of police at a high level of readiness and very little threat.”

The situation is still not in accordance with Israeli law which mandates equality of religions at the site. When Brosh exited the site, he was ordered to a hearing and a distancing order was issued against him. In addition, ten Jews were arrested on Tisha B’Av for praying at the site. Two Muslims were also detained after chanting derogatory slogans against the Jews, the Ynet news site reported.

Michael Miller, a tour guide at the site and an activist of the Students for the Temple Mount movement,

“Three years ago, this would not have happened,” Miller said. “They used to pat Jews down and do body searches. And the police would have jumped all over a Jew who tried to wave the flag. The situation for Jewish rights has certainly improved.”

“This is kind of religious,” Miller said. “It means that we are back. The timing is significant. While the Israeli government is saying they will grant sovereignty to Judea and Samaria, which they probably won’t do, they are intentionally ignoring the holiest site; the Temple Mount. What good are Judea and Samaria if we toss away the Temple Mount?”

The Jordanian Foreign Ministry published a statement condemning what it called a violation of Israel’s agreement with the Waqf Islamic trust that manages the Temple Mount, according to Hebrew-language media. The statement alleged that Jerusalem had given approval for “hundreds of extremist Jews to break into Al-Aqsa under the protection of the Israel Police.”

It should be noted that Al Aqsa is the silver-domed mosque at the southern end of the compound and no non-Muslims are permitted to enter the building.

War on Cash and One World Currency

Dr. Ileana Johnson Paugh Canada Free Press

Money greases the wheels of exchange, and thus makes the whole economy more productive. The idea that everything should be cashless is problematic for so many reasons. Bartering is a good under certain circumstances and societies, but it relies on what Keynesian economists call a “double coincidence of wants,” making it less desirable than cash.

Cash is easier because it is a convenient medium of exchange, sometimes free from government prying eyes, a unit of account for quoting prices, and a store of value as long as the trust in government is not eroded and inflation is low.

From the people's perspective, cash is freedom

Cash is lightweight, can have large denominational value, does not spoil, and is thus better than commodity money, i.e., cigarettes, bullets, chocolate, jewelry, gold coins, pelts, furs, soap, etc.

From the government's perspective, it is easy to see why they would want a cashless society. Banning cash under the guise of it being infected by disease, of controlling money laundering of criminals and drug lords, and routing all of our income, every last penny through the banking system helps them better control everything we do, freezing accounts at will, while taxation becomes so much easier, including payments to Obamacare insurance and any financial penalties an individual is required to pay. It enables governments to track with 100 percent accuracy everything we buy and sell, everything we own, and everything we do.

From the people's perspective, cash is freedom, but the leftist mainstream media is attacking it with pathetic excuses such as cash is physically dirty, expensive, potentially criminal, and obsolete 19th century technology, happily promoting the "war on cash."

The media's opposition sees the "war on cash" as another form of population control when people's accounts can be raided and their owners classified as potential domestic terrorists, or denied healthcare, travel, education, and other services if they are marked with a "digital star."

The issues with a cashless society are too many to mention them all:

Total control by the state or its proxy

Savings could result from not using special paper, printing, ink, labor, and metal alloys but then those in the trade would become unemployed

If an attack occurs on the Smart Grid and there is no power, there are no financial transactions possible without some cash, a substitute, or barter

In the event of a national disaster, i.e., earthquake, tsunami, hurricane, tornado, power outages, transactions can be made by cash, commodity money, or barter

An EMP attack or intense solar flares would make cash or one world currency worthless and people will resort to theft

A cashless or global currency would give banks extraordinary power with no cap on interest rates or their control

Cashless transaction will always be traceable and thus the person's location

One world currency in a cashless market would eliminate exchange rates, currency trading futures, eliminate a substantial sector of the job market and thus revenues

Black markets and illegal activities would be eliminated, and everyone will be forced to pay taxes on every penny

Children under 18 would be excluded from holding credit cards and thus excluded from financial transactions without cash; no more grandma cash gifts, lawn mowing money, or rainy-day cash savings in a jar

Prostitution will have to be legalized and client's names become public record

Billions of Muslims would lose hawala transactions which are based on cash

Conducting monetary policy about money stock will be altered as cash disappears and one world government such as the U.N. would have to do it

Labor will be purchased and sold with electronic credits and debits

How would the value of one world currency be decided? Will it be tied to gold, silver, platinum, or some other precious metal or decided arbitrarily by the United Nations?

The destabilization of economies via counterfeit currency between countries would be eliminated as a tactic of war if only one currency exists

What would cyber attacks do to a single grid of digital money?

What would happen to third world nations that are not so electronically wired and depend heavily on cash and barter? How could they possibly make transactions in digital money?

Would there be electronic counterfeit of digital currency across the globe and who would police it?

Yet the Bank of International Settlements is getting headlines again because of its direction of central banks to go cashless.

Cancel Trump and The Great Reset of the Globe

By Dr. Ileana Johnson Paugh — August 10, 2020

"What a great transition into global Marxism, using millions of young useful idiots mobilized by leftist "global media and social media networks" "The main obstacle to a stable and just world is the United States." - George Soros

A socialist once said, "never let a crisis go to waste," and it seems that the Covid-19 pandemic has offered such an unprecedented crisis that the globalists will gladly utilize to finally eliminate the U.S. as the only roadblock left to implementing their one world government goals.

Since at least half of the country agrees with the Democrats and their globalist plans, the only person left in the way which represents the other half of America that must be "persuaded" by any means necessary that one world government is best for the collective, is President Donald J. Trump.

Davos & the Plot to Cancel Trump

Come November, the globalists are giddy at the prospect that he is going to lose re-election by any means necessary provided conveniently by a viral flu which has spread across the planet.

When would globalists ever have another such serendipitous crisis and opportunity to turn 330 million American people into frightened subjects willing to lock themselves in their own homes for the foreseeable future and wear ineffective masks indefinitely?

We went from '14 days to flatten the curve,' to house arrest until we accept world communism with few protestations. We went from masks to constant media produced public service announcements (PSAs) playing on every station and website. The globalist and the domestic Left convinced its brainwashed sycophants that Donald Trump caused everything and even a paid rioter would be better president than he.

In a bizarre life imitates art category, a 2003 show called the "Dead Zone" played an episode in which the cast of characters were trying to deal with a viral pandemic caused by the Corona virus. The symptoms were eerily like the Covid-19 viral pandemic. The officials in the show locked down the affected area, quarantined everyone who encountered the afflicted humans, treated the sick patients with chloroquine, a malaria drug, and managed to save the world from a catastrophe.

Joe Keller remarked, "The only difference between 2003 (the show's pandemic) and 2020 (our real pandemic) is that the fictitious government of 2003 did not suppress the truth, did not ban a medication that has been safe for 65 years, and gave the drug to everybody. And, of course, there were no Big Tech Companies that thought they were God."

Big Tech has been suppressing the truth and censoring those who dare speak it, i.e., doctors, writers, journalists, average Americans on social media, and even the President of the United States.

The mainstream media does not seem to be the least bit curious why during a global pandemic, casualties from Covid-19 have not piled up in third world countries that have no sanitation, cannot "socially distance" their citizens, and are plagued by millions of malaria casualties who are treated with chloroquine.

The "cancel culture" movement has disposed of all celebrities, politicians, and any person with a job who has held a divergent opinion from the politically correct one of the left, a suppression of speech corrupt academia has been inculcating into their pupils and teachers alike for fifty years.

Joe Concha said about cancel culture: "You say something that the woke mob doesn't agree with and you will be eliminated." No public apologies, repudiations, and firings have quenched the thirst of the PC war against American decency, morality, and faith. The biggest victims so far are American history and statues of famous Americans accused of white supremacy and racism.

The left catapulted any imaginable accusation, legal and illegal, at President Trump to get rid of him and to install the much-desired Marxist one world government. They blame him non-stop in the media and on any other platform they can find, for creating the pandemic and causing the death of thousands of Americans/. Never mind that it was Democrat governors who denied their citizens any suitable treatment except ventilators, masks, sanitizing everything to death, and the promise of a hurried vaccine.

As it was expected, the left has failed miserably so far, and at great expense to American taxpayers, to "cancel Trump" no matter what they tried.

The globalists at Davos 2021 are giddy at the prospect of "canceling Trump" in November and, come January 26, they will be able to "reset the globe" with the "red" button to fit the ideology and plans they have concocted and refined over the years.

The World Economic Forum (WEF), a non-government organization (NGO), meets annually in Davos, Switzerland, a fashionable ski resort, to discuss the fate of the world. The 2021 theme is "The Great Reset," for a world with a "sustainable and resilient future" without the U.S. in the way and without Donald Trump. This new social contract will center on "social justice," the mantra of the Marxist movement.

The 51st WEF will convene in person and virtually, is by invitation only, and is quite pricey to attend ($28,000 per person). Global leaders from government, business, and “civil society and stakeholders” from around the world who subscribe to a one world government, will convene to discuss the fate of seven billion humans. Celebrities, billionaires, President Donald Trump, and even teenage Swedish environmental activist Greta Thunberg were invited to attend in 2019.

We are told that The Great Reset is necessary in order to build a new “social contract” that “lives up to the expectations of young people,” deals with the global health crisis, and reveals the “evils of racism and discrimination” and “the lack of equal opportunities and inclusiveness.”

Professor Klaus Schwab, Founder and Executive Chairman of the WEF, said that the globe “must move from shareholder capitalism to stakeholder responsibility.... Covid-19 has accelerated our transition into the age of the Fourth Industrial Revolution. We have to make sure that the new technologies in the digital, biological, and physical world remain human-centered and serve society as a whole, providing everyone with fair access.” WeForum

What a great transition into global Marxism, using millions of young useful idiots mobilized by leftist “global media and social media networks.”

So many headlines:

New South Wales hit by strong winds and worst flood in 29 years, Australia

Torrential rain and strong winds lashed the New South Wales South Coast over the weekend, causing the worst flooding in the area for 29 years. High waves killed a 44-year-old surfer in Sydney’s Collaroy. At least 1 600 emergency calls had also been made during the day, while 2 000 customers were left without power.

At least 7 dead, 3 000 properties damaged as massive rains hit Evia, Greece

At least seven people— including an 8-month-old baby— lost their lives while 3 000 properties were damaged during a severe storm on the island Evia, Greece on Saturday and Sunday, August 8 and 9, 2020. According to the country’s meteorological service, parts of the island saw up to 300 mm (12 inches) of rainfall, which is equivalent to 80 percent of the annual rainfall of 375 mm (15 inches).

Active hurricane season fueled by unusually warm water and light steering winds

NOAA’s Climate Prediction Center updated its seasonal tropical storm forecast by an average of six storms, to between 19 and 24 named storms through the remainder of the year, including 7 to 11 hurricanes, with 74 mph sustained winds or greater. Three to six storms potentially could reach major hurricane status (Category 3 or higher, with winds of 111 mph-plus ...

Locust plague panic: Alert issued as swarm heads to one of Earth’s most vulnerable regions

A SWARM of locusts are moving west from the Horn of Africa to the Sahel that is the transition zone between the Sahara desert and the equatorial regions of Africa – one of the world’s most insecure places for food-security.

As drought deepens, Iowa farmers pray for rain to cut corn losses, add soybean yield

Part or all of 13 Iowa counties are in extreme drought territory, a national report indicated Thursday. All together, 23 counties in west-central Iowa, including Polk, Dallas and Madison in metro Des Moines, are experiencing extreme or severe drought, according to the U.S. Drought Monitor

Bubonic Plague: China Quarantines Region While Second Case Diagnosed in New Mexico

While the WHO declares that there is nothing to worry about, China is sealing off entire villages and a man died in New Mexico from a rare form of the plague that once killed off half the world population. China sealed off several villages in Inner Mongolia in a second attempt to contain the spread of a new outbreak of bubonic plague.

Derecho leaves trail of destruction in Iowa before sweeping through Chicago

An intense line of storms known as a derecho developed over the central United States on Monday, causing significant damage and widespread power outages as it blitzed eastward. Travel was disrupted on highways across the region, not only because of debris from the storms but also due to tractor trailers that were flipped on their sides due to the strong winds. Ahead of its arrival, the National Weather Service (NWS) warned residents around the Windy City that it was “an extremely dangerous situation with tornado like wind speeds expected.”

Swarm of Salton Sea earthquakes sparks worry about the San Andreas fault

A swarm of small earthquakes in California, close to the Mexican border, is being closely monitored as to whether it might raise the chance of a much larger event on the San Andreas fault. The largest earthquake on Monday was a magnitude 4.6, reported at 8:56 a.m. under the southeastern part of the Salton Sea, according to the U.S. Geological Survey.

Honduras shaken by 5.7 magnitude earthquake near Caribbean islands

Northern Honduras was on Thursday shaken by a shallow 5.7 magnitude earthquake, according to the United States Geological Survey (USGS), which placed the epicenter in the Caribbean near the Bay Islands popular with tourists. There were no immediate reports of damage. The quake was 10 km (6.2 miles) below ground, USGS said.

Christians must defy Caesar’s attempt to control the church

Government attempts to regulate church attendance and worship practices violate not only the law of our land, the U.S. Constitution, they violate the law above the law, and because of that every Christian pastor should individually be in open defiance of restrictive “mandates” and collectively in active civil rebellion against the state and local governments issuing them. The daily news should be dominated not by violent BLM/Antifa rioting over phony “systemic racism” narratives, but by images of bold but non-violent men of God standing resolutely against tyranny – speaking forth the truth of the Gospel even if hauled off to jail

Goodbye EU! Boris told to form ‘superpower’ alliance with Australia, Canada & New Zealand

BORIS JOHNSON has been overwhelming told by Express.co.uk readers to form a “superpower” alliance with the old Commonwealth allies of Australia, Canada and New Zealand after Brexit as Britain waves goodbye to the European Union. Britain could be moving towards forming the “CANZUK Union”, the acronym for Canada, Australia, New Zealand, after finally freeing itself from the bloc at the end of the Brexit transition period on December 31.

raptureready.com