The Top Ten Bible Prophecy Stories of 2020

By Jan Markell

November 17, 2020

1) The Decline of America. There is really no end-time power in the Bible other than a Revived Roman Empire from which the Antichrist will headquarter. Thus, prophecy watchers have always known America must decline. This year we have watched capitalism come under attack and socialism and globalism be heralded. Some progressive but deluded political leaders are even hailing Marxism, including many on the Biden team.

2) The Rise of Lawlessness, Anarchy and Spirit of Antichrist. We see unbridled lawlessness in Matthew 24 and parts of Revelation, although the context of both is the Tribulation. So once again, we see Tribulation events casting a long shadow on the Church Age. Here in America, literally "all hell is breaking loose" and our Republic and rule of law are disintegrating right before our eyes! At the root of this is the spirit of the Antichrist.

3) Peace Efforts in the Middle East. We can debate the practicality of these events and should America and Europe even intrude on Israel with peace efforts? Nonetheless, they are setting the stage for peace deals proposed by the Antichrist. And, the year is not over, so more peace efforts may take place before year-end. But, I am reminded of the haunting words in Jeremiah 6:14: "Saying peace, peace, when there is no peace."

4) Increasing Attacks on Christians, Christianity, Churches, etc. Thanks to Covid-19, churches, and Christianity in general, became gross inconveniences in 2020. Churches were either shut down or marginalized starting in March. Christians in America were harassed and even arrested for wishing to just practice their faith and meet for worship. Believers in the Mideast and Africa were slaughtered by the thousands. Jesus said a day was coming when we would be hated for His Name's sake (Matt. 10:22).

5) Growing Apostasy and Wolves Among the Flock. Sound biblical preaching is fading with a rise in the love for experience, emotion, and unsound doctrine. There is even the love of the “doctrine of demons” (I Timothy 4:1). The New Apostolic Reformation continues to surge. A new, but very false teaching in both churches and seminaries, is the Marxist Critical Race Theory. At the same time, Bible prophecy has vanished from most pulpits, as well as support for Israel.

6) Pre-Tribulation Birth Pangs. The worst of the birth pangs are in the Tribulation, but we see a foreshadowing of these horrors now in the Church Age. Natural disasters are unprecedented globally. The destruction is heart-wrenching to watch and the suffering is unspeakable. This will increase to such a level in the Tribulation that what is happening now is minuscule in comparison. But the stage is again being set. All of the earth is groaning.

7) The Continued and Rapid Decline of the Culture. Everywhere evil is being called good (Isaiah 5:20). Aberration is celebrated. Netflix seemed to honor pedophilia with its “Cuties” feature and film. California passed pro-pedophilia legislation, removing felony status for sex with minors. Today’s character of mankind is outlined in Romans 1 and II Timothy 3—and it’s all predicted for a final generation. The Washington D.C. swamp is murkier than ever before!

8) The Rise of Strong Delusion. So much delusion arose in 2020 it is incalculable. What thinking person wants all police abolished? Or thinks America is a racist nation? Or destroys the economy over a virus? Or its youth think the Holocaust is a myth? II Thessalonians 2 suggests such a delusion is sent because there is no love of the truth. This will then cause people to fall for the lies of the Antichrist.

9) A Covid-19(84) Surveillance State Worsened and Preparation for NWO. Government intrusion and “contact tracing” abounded in 2020. People even had to “register” for church so they could be traced. The goal lines for easing government restrictions, lock downs, quarantines, and even face masks, kept changing. Clearly, society is being prepped for the Antichrist here in 2020. Around the world, people are being turned into mind-numbed robots. Many are cowering in fear.

10) The Longing for a Savior. With the world in a meltdown mode, millions are looking for just one superhuman man to bring back peace and prosperity. He is waiting in the wings! Most have rejected Jesus Christ. They will cheer for a short season for the Antichrist.

That’s my short list of prominent events in 2020 that have end-time significance! It could be seen as a heartbreaking list, but it heralds an imminent happening that many believers have been longing for—the return of the King of Kings. It could even be today.

Keep your eye on the Great Re-Set in 2021. Recently, World Economic Forum head Klaus Schwab said that they are working on implantable chips that can read our thoughts. If you think things will “return to normal” in 2021, think again.

So more uncertainty is ahead, as even the results of the 2020 election hang in the balance. God is shaking us up, trying to wake us up so that we will look up. If anything has been proven to be a surety in 2020, it is that this world is fading and is not our home. But, believers have a glorious one awaiting us.

Awaiting His return,

China Wants Passenger Tracking System for Global Travel Coronavirus Reset

Chinese Communist President Xi Jinping wants travelers to adopt a global QR code system to help determine their health status and travel “permissions” in a post-coronavirus pandemic travel reset.

During the virtual G20 summit on Saturday, Xi called for a coronavirus “global mechanism” which involves international recognition of health certificates in the form of QR codes to allow people to travel freely, according to state media.

The dictator says the system can be based on “nucleic acid testing results in the form of internationally accepted QR codes,” reported state news agency Xinhua.

“We need to further harmonise policies and standards and establish ‘fast tracks’ to facilitate the orderly flow of people,” he is quoted saying. “[We] hope more countries would participate.”

QR codes are bar codes that can be read by mobile phones that are a common tool of tracking and control in Communist China.

Under the scheme China has employed since February, users are issued a traffic-light style health code, with a green code allowing someone to travel freely, and an orange or red code indicating that they need to quarantine for up to two weeks.

The codes are based on a combination of big data and information submitted by the users themselves.

The leader of the Chinese Communist Party did not explain how the international scheme might work or if it would mirror the health code system which has been widely adopted in China.

The lack of detailed information has already been flagged by critics who see it is a piece of social engineering.

In a tweet, the executive director of Human Rights Watch Kenneth Roth expressed caution over Xi’s proposal.

“An initial focus on health could easily become a Trojan Horse for broader political monitoring and exclusion,” he said.

China been building its own mass surveillance network for the past decade, which boasts hundreds of millions of street cameras.

The surveillance network has been billed as the world’s most powerful facial-recognition system and aims to identify any of its 1.4 billion citizens within three seconds.

China is also looking at more digital methods of ensuring its citizens comply with the strictures of the single-party state.

'The Great Reset' Is Just An Updated Blueprint For The New World Order

The Internet sure has been buzzing about "the Great Reset" lately. That term has been trending on Facebook and Twitter, and the New York Times even published an article dismissing it as a "conspiracy theory". But it is definitely no conspiracy theory.

I was determined to get to the bottom of this whole thing, and I am going to share the facts that the New York Times either could not find or refused to share.

It turns out that "the Great Reset" is actually an initiative that was started by the World Economic Forum that is designed to get "global stakeholders to cooperate in simultaneously managing the direct consequences of the COVID-19 crisis". The following comes directly from the official website of the World Economic Forum...

There is an urgent need for global stakeholders to cooperate in simultaneously managing the direct consequences of the COVID-19 crisis. To improve the state of the world, the World Economic Forum is starting The Great Reset initiative.

So the New York Times put out fake news when they told all of us that "the Great Reset" is just a "conspiracy theory", and they owe all of us a major apology.

According to the World Economic Forum, "the Great Reset" is a "unique window of opportunity" for global leaders to shape "the future state of global relations, the direction of national economies, the priorities of societies, the nature of business models and the management of a global commons"...

As we enter a unique window of opportunity to shape the recovery, this initiative will offer insights to help inform all those determining the future state of global relations, the direction of national economies, the priorities of societies, the nature of business models and the management of a global commons.

Drawing from the vision and vast expertise of the leaders engaged across the Forum's communities, the Great Reset initiative has a set of dimensions to build a new social contract that honours the dignity of every human being.

In other words, "the Great Reset" is essentially just an updated blueprint for a New World Order.

The man behind "the Great Reset" is named Klaus Schwab. He is the founder and executive chairman of the World Economic Forum, and elsewhere on the official site of the WEF there is an article by Schwab entitled "Now is the time for a 'great reset'". The following is an excerpt from that article...

To achieve a better outcome, the world must act jointly and swiftly to revamp all aspects of our societies and economies, from education to social contracts and working conditions.

Every country, from the United States to China, must participate, and every industry, from oil and gas to tech, must be transformed. In short, we need a "Great Reset" of capitalism.

He is very open about the fact that he wants to "revamp all aspects of our societies and economies". That means that all aspects of human activity would fall under his plan.

But in particular, he very much wants a "Great Reset" of capitalism.

That definitely sets off alarm bells. When people start talking about dramatic changes to capitalism, usually what they mean is that we should move even more in the direction of socialism.

According to Schwab, there are three main components to "the Great Reset". The first involves reforming our economic systems so that they will "promote more equitable outcomes"...

Moreover, governments should implement long-overdue reforms that promote more equitable outcomes. Depending on the country, these may include changes to wealth taxes, the withdrawal of fossil-fuel subsidies, and new rules governing intellectual property, trade, and competition.

Unfortunately, I think that he means the exact same thing that Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez means when she talks about "more equitable outcomes".

Secondly, Schwab says that one of the main components of "the Great Reset" would involve massive government investments in "green" urban infrastructure and other similar projects...

The second component of a Great Reset agenda would ensure that investments advance shared goals, such as equality and sustainability. Here, the large-scale spending programs that many governments are implementing represent a major opportunity for progress.

The European Commission, for one, has unveiled plans for a €750 billion ($826 billion) recovery fund. The US, China, and Japan also have ambitious economic-stimulus plans.

Rather than using these funds, as well as investments from private entities and pension funds, to fill cracks in the old system, we should use them to create a new one that is more resilient, equitable, and sustainable in the long run.

This means, for example, building "green" urban infrastructure and creating incentives for industries to improve their track record on environmental, social, and governance (ESG) metrics.

Doesn't that sound a whole lot like the "Green New Deal" that many on the left have been pushing here in the United States?

Thirdly, Schwab envisions applying the "innovations" that we have witnessed during the COVID pandemic as a model for "every sector" of society...

The third and final priority of a Great Reset agenda is to harness the innovations of the Fourth Industrial Revolution to support the public good, especially by addressing health and social challenges.

During the COVID-19 crisis, companies, universities, and others have joined forces to develop diagnostics, therapeutics, and possible vaccines; establish testing centers; create mechanisms for tracing infections; and deliver telemedicine. Imagine what could be possible if similar concerted efforts were made in every sector.

In other words, Schwab thinks that the global response to the COVID pandemic can be a blueprint for governing every area of our lives moving forward.

Doesn't that sound just wonderful?

Of course in order for the globalists to get the United States on board with this "Great Reset", they will need to get Donald Trump out of the way first, and they think that they are very close to achieving that goal.

The globalists envision a "sustainable" future in which all forms of human activity are very closely monitored and controlled for "the good of the planet".

They are entirely convinced that a global system in which all the nations of the world are increasingly integrated is what is best for humanity, but those of us that are resisting the globalists understand that a one world system will inevitably evolve into a complete and utter global nightmare.

Globalist publications such as the New York Times will continue to try to convince all of us that plans such as "the Great Reset" do not even exist, even as globalist organizations such as the World Economic Forum are publicly announcing their plans right out in the open.

In times like these, it is absolutely imperative to think for yourself, because deception is everywhere and those that tell the truth are often greatly ridiculed.

Justice (and anti-Semitism) you shall pursue

The new form of Jew-hatred is a combination of anti-Zionism and identity politics.

Over the past week or so we have been witnessing the emergence of a new sort of anti-Semitism in the Democratic Party. The new form of Jew-hatred is a combination of anti-Zionism and identity politics. It is convoluted and hard to follow. But contradictions and all, it has arrived. And Jewish Americans, sensing the partisan disposition, are adapting themselves accordingly.

The first place to look for the new Jew-hatred is in Joe Biden's appointments. Most of the attention this week has been focused on Biden's senior appointments. Biden appointed Tony Blinken, who is Jewish, to serve as his secretary of state. As John Kerry's deputy, Blinken played a major role in crafting the nuclear deal with Iran which, while billed as a non-proliferation agreement, gave the world's greatest state sponsor of terrorism an open path to a nuclear arsenal. Like his former boss, Blinken is faithful to the view that the Palestinians are the strategic nerve center of the Middle East. Without their agreement, it is impossible – or if possible, wrong – for Arab states to make peace with Israel.

Blinken is considered an establishment figure rather than an ideologue. But since he is a Jew, party ideologues view him as suspect. For instance, Congresswoman Rashida Tlaib responded to the news of his appointment with an anti-Semitic tweet. Responding to socialist Senator Bernie Sanders' praise for Blinken's appointment, Tlaib averred, "So long as he doesn't suppress my First Amendment right to speak out against Netanyahu's racist and inhumane policies."

Two other appointments announced this week certainly were more to Tlaib's liking.

Biden appointed Reema Dodin, a Palestinian American to serve as the deputy director of the White House Office of Legislative Affairs. As the pro-Israel website Elder of Zion reported, in 2002, as a student at the University of California Berkeley, Dodin was the head of the Muslim Brotherhood-aligned Muslim Students Association. In that capacity, she gave a speech at a church in Lodi, California where she justified suicide bombers. In her words at the time, "The suicide bombers were the last resort of a desperate people."

After her remarks were reported by Fox News, the Biden campaign issued a defensive response. Notably, the campaign made no effort to either deny or distance itself from Dodin's justification for the mass murder of Israelis by Palestinian terrorists. Instead, the campaign response read, "Reema is the first to tell you she has grown from her youth in her approach to pushing for change." In other words, Dodin continues to justify the mass murder of Jews. But now that she's a grown-up, she presents it differently.

Multiple media outlets reported this week that Karine Jean-Pierre, Senator Kamala Harris' chief of staff, is the frontrunner to serve as White House Spokesperson. Jean-Pierre has a rich record of anti-Israel statements and activism. Reportedly an enthusiastic supporter of the anti-Jewish BDS campaign, last year, Jean-Pierre led a successful effort to embarrass Democrat presidential primary candidates into boycotting the AIPAC's 2019 annual convention. In a column in Newsweek at the time, Jean-Pierre warned, "You cannot call yourself a progressive while continuing to associate yourself with an organization like AIPAC."

In the same article, Jean-Pierre accused Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu of committing war crimes and accused the Trump administration of anti-Semitism. Jean-Pierre's behavior is seemingly inconsistent. On the one hand, she engaged in anti-Semitism. She called for the ostracism of a Jewish organization for the "crime" of supporting the US-Israel alliance and used slander to demonize Israel's prime minister. On the other hand, she presented herself as a champion of the Jews by calling President Trump an anti-Semite. Unfortunately, this simultaneous embrace and condemnation of anti-Semitism is a primary characteristic of the Democrats' new anti-Semitism.

Perhaps its most outrageous current expression is found in an online advertisement for an upcoming panel discussion that is being organized by the viciously anti-Jewish group Jewish Voice for Peace. Over the past decade or so, JVP has served as a "Jewish" fig leaf for campaigns to boycott Israel, its products and representatives, its Jewish supporters, and their businesses and organizations. Over the past several weeks, JVP has aggressively advertised a panel discussion it will be hosting with other "Jewish" groups that support anti-Jewish boycotts. The discussion is titled, "Deconstructing Anti-Semitism, Winning Justice."

The panel will feature four speakers who support Israel's annihilation: Tlaib, Peter Beinart, who called for Israel's destruction in a New York Times in July, former CNN commentator Marc Lamont Hill who called for Israel's annihilation in a speech at a conference at the UN last year, and Barbara Ransby, an outspoken supporter of anti-Jewish boycotts who has defended calls for the mass murder of Israeli Jews.

How can these self-evidently anti-Jewish speakers credibly participate in a discussion about anti-Semitism?

Well, it's actually very simple. Like Jean-Pierre, they will argue that anti-Semitism is a synonym for the Republican party, or the conservative movement, or the political right, or Zionism.

The New York Times' Jonathan Weisman made the claim in a comprehensive way in his 2018 book (Semitism): Being Jewish in America in the Age of Trump. Weisman's essential argument in his book was that being Jewish means being progressive and everything that isn't progressive is anti-Semitic. By this definition, Ilhan Omar and Tlaib are Jews, and Trump, the Republicans, Netanyahu and Israel as a whole are anti-Semites.

Jewish progressives have internalized Weisman's message.

As Trump's legal challenges to the vote counts in swing states make their way through the courts, attention is now turning to the two Senate run-off elections in Georgia scheduled for Jan. 5. If the Republicans lose both seats, and if, as looks all but certain, Biden is inaugurated on Jan. 20, then the Democrats will control both houses of Congress and the executive. Since the Democrats have pledged to use such power to enact major changes to America's political structure, the stakes in the Georgia Senate races are high.

One of the Democrats' candidates is Rev. Raphael Warnock, the senior pastor at Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta where Martin Luther King Jr. once served. Over the past couple of weeks, a video of one of Warnock's sermons has been making the rounds. In it, Warnock used anti-Semitic language to demonize Israel just after the administration opened the US Embassy in Jerusalem.

Warnock began, "It's been a tough week. The administration opened up the US Embassy in Jerusalem. Standing there [were] the president's family and a few mealy-mouthed evangelical preachers who are responsible for the mess that we found ourselves in, both there and here – misquoting and misinterpreting the Scripture, talking about peace."

Warnock went on to compare the Palestinians to African American civil rights activists and Israel to animal predators. In his words, "We saw the government of Israel shoot down unarmed Palestinian sisters and brothers like birds of prey ... It is wrong to shoot down God's children like they don't matter at all. And it's no more anti-Semitic for me to say that than it is anti-white for me to say that black lives matter. Palestinian lives matter."

In 2019, Warnock signed a declaration along with other African American and South African pastors condemning Israel as an apartheid state.

After his statements began circulating, Warnock penned an article expressing deep support for Israel, opposition to boycotts of the Jewish state, and support for military assistance to Israel. And right after he did that, a group of 200 progressive rabbis published a statement expressing their appreciation for Warnock's "strong support for Israel and his partnership with the Jewish people."

Ignoring the documented evidence of Warnock's bigoted hostility to the Jewish state, the rabbis suggested that "baseless claims and attacks" against Warnock were motivated by racism.

Although the rabbis disingenuously claimed they weren't endorsing any candidate in the race, their message was clear enough. As "religious leaders" they have no problem with Warnock comparing Israel to animals. And anyway, it's racist to view his statements and action as anti-Semitic. For faithful Jews, what's most important is that Warnock wins the race so that the Democrats, (that is, the Jews), win control of the Senate and the Republicans, (aka, the anti-Semites), become an ostracized minority.

The rabbis' insinuation that it is racist to attack Warnock for his anti-Semitism points to another feature of the Democrats' new anti-Semitism: the centrality of identity politics. While blacks comprise the most privileged group in the identity politics pecking order, Jews have been placed in the unsavory category of whites. And Zionist Jews are in the equally if not more unsavory category of colonialists. Under the circumstances, it is unthinkable that progressive Jews would criticize blacks. And it is ridiculous to expect for blacks to be upset when "privileged," "white," "colonialist" Jews are mistreated. Warnock can attack Jews as "birds of prey" and get away with it because Jews have no right to expect blacks to respect them. Doing so would be racist.

This brings us to another current manifestation of progressive Jewish internalization of the new anti-Semitism.

This week it was reported that the Holocaust Center in Maitland, Florida, is now featuring a photography exhibit on the anti-police protests that followed the police killing of George Floyd in June. The message of the exhibit is easy to understand: The police are Nazis.

Calling cops Nazis is an egregious form of Holocaust trivialization to the point of denial. There is no similarity between George Floyd's death at the hands of a few bad police officers who are being harshly punished for their crimes, and the systematic genocide of European Jewry. Why on earth would the Holocaust Center advance such an offensive claim?

The answer here is depressingly obvious. They are trivializing the Holocaust in the hopes of attracting blacks and other Democrats who are largely indifferent to Jewish suffering. If the message goes out that blacks are today's Jews and police are today's Nazis, then maybe progressives – blacks, whites and everything in between – will let Jews join them in their contemporary victimhood even if they like Israel.

Exit polls of this month's election showed that as always, a large majority of American Jews voted Democrat. The progressive rabbis' letter absolving Warnock for his hateful statements on Israel, and the Holocaust Center's Holocaust trivializing exhibition are expressions of progressive Jewish accommodation to their party's new anti-Semitism. They have agreed to redefine Judaism as progressivism and anti-Semitism as everything that isn't progressive. And if Democrats express anti-Semitism, and even build themselves up on the basis of such expressions, as Tlaib and Beinart and Warnock do, then that's a good thing. For by doing so, they are actually dismantling anti-Semitism and winning justice.
