15-Minute Cities Are Climate Lockdowns

By Dr. Ileana Johnson Paugh

UNAgenda 21/2030 is closer than ever to completion. One component, the 15-minute city/neighborhood, is being imposed in the U.S. without the informed consent and vote of the community, just as they had introduced the ICLEI membership into many parts of the U.S. decades ago.

ICLEI (International Council for Local Environmental Initiatives) is now Local Governments for Sustainability. Environmental ‘Sustainability’ is the lynchpin of U.N. Agenda 21/2030 and ICLEI is the non-governmental organization (NGO) that promotes it to local governments around the world.

NGOs vilified the developed way of life, fossil fuels, use of cars, and our mobility

ICLEI, an NGO headquartered initially in Germany (now has 20 offices around the world, including New York), sent activists to board meetings and presented regional plans and local plans with new designs for communities, without the input of the local communities affected.

People were busy, so they thought other community members voted for the mixed-use development plans to fight the imaginary global warming and therefore it had to be good. Who would not want green spaces, bike lanes, and endless parks?

NGOs vilified the developed way of life, fossil fuels, use of cars, and our mobility. But the goal turned out to be a lot more than just the greening of the planet, reducing pollution, and undependable green energy, it was about total control of every facet of human activity, the carbon footprint taxation, and the CO2 capture. The climate change industry was born when the global warming narrative proved to be just a scam.

U.N. and its affiliated green NGOs introduced five-minute walk or bike to work/school, commuting by train, mixed-use high rise tiny apartments without parking garages and businesses on the first floor to save the planet from global warming Armageddon.

WEF --“Biggest urban ideas to emerge from the pandemic, the 15-minute city or 15-minute neighborhood”

Young and gentrified urban neighborhoods welcomed the plan, bike lanes were introduced everywhere with very few users. But the rest of America was not so sold on the idea because Americans live in a vast country, and they love the freedom of the road.

The World Economic Forum’s Great Reset pushed the idea of living in an expanded 15-minute neighborhood with amenities to satisfy most urbanites. They won’t call it a climate lockdown, or an expensive concentration of apartment dwellers who cannot leave their area and intrude on other areas without a penalty. Those are details that are not specifically addressed. If they did, few would love the idea.

The WEF is introducing it as the “biggest urban ideas to emerge from the pandemic, the 15-minute city or 15-minute neighborhood,” imagined by the Colombian-French urbanist Carlos Moreno, the son of a Colombian farmer, now a professor in France. Moreno was a member of the left-wing M-19 movement when he fled Colombia at the age of 20. He is an advisor to the mayor of Paris, Anne Hidalgo, a Spanish-French politician who is a member of the Socialist Party.

In 2020 Moreno published two articles “Urban life and proximity at the time of Covid-19” in Editions de l’Observatoire, and “Droit de Cite, de la ville-monde a la ville du quart d’heure” (Freedom of the city, from the world city to the city of the quarter of an hour), in Editions de l’Observatoire.

Having lived under communism for twenty years, I understand the limitations of city travel, of village travel, and the limited travel

Moreno’s idea is that everything you need to live, i.e., shops, schools, work, doctor’s offices, parks, libraries, restaurants, and everything else that makes life worth living is located within “a short 15-minute walk or bike ride from home.” The neighborhood zone becomes an ‘isochrone.’

What is an isochrone (iso=same, chrone=time)? Isochrones are maps that show the areas you can reach within a travel time limit. The only difference between a forced camp and these zones is the fact that camps had tall walls and locked gates, but the 15-minute neighborhood zone has electronic gates and cameras that take your picture and fine you later.

Having lived under communism for twenty years, I understand the limitations of city travel, of village travel, and the limited travel radius within and without the city or village that we were allowed by the government and by our own facility to travel, given the limited modes of transportation at our disposal, walking, bike, train, or buses vis-à-vis our limited means to buy ticket prices or monthly subsidized passes. Permission had to be sought to move from place to place if a person stayed more than a week in a relative's home. And nobody could move from any village to the nearest city without government permission.

One must parcel the 15-minute city into small spaces. Who needs so much space? Who needs a car and parking spaces? You can't find what you need in the 15-minute neighborhood? Too bad, you can only leave your zone so many times a year without having to pay a fine. There will be e-gates that will monitor your cars if you leave and there will be facial recognition software taking your picture as you drive away to see your sister who happens to live in the next parceled zone, both controlled by e-gates.

It is a climate lockdown and the excuse is CO2, the gas of plant life

Fifteen-minute cities or neighborhoods to save the planet from climate change Armageddon? It is a climate lockdown and the excuse is CO2, the gas of plant life. Ask Katie Hopkins.

The city of Oxford, she said, will be divided into six parts. "You will only have the freedom to operate in the part that you live in." If you want to go out of your zone, you will have to go out on an approved route on the outside of the city to re-enter another section of the city." You will not be allowed to cross other zones. If you do, electronic gates and facial recognition will know that you have crossed an unauthorized zone. You can apply for permission to visit another zone, but you will only be allowed to do this 100 times per year. The Oxford Council passed this monstrosity, and it will be implemented within two years. The fine for going over the allowed visits on your pass is £100, $122.43.

The half-baked idea of 15-minute cities was sold because cars pollute, you must hunt for a parking space, CO2 is bad for the planet even though it is the gas of plant life and without it, we can't grow much food nor get oxygen from CO2-absorbing trees that produce oxygen.

Melbourne already jumped on the wagon with 800-meter radius communities.

Portland's Climate Action Plan "calls for more vibrant neighborhood in which 90% of the resident can walk or bike to fulfill their daily needs."

What a kumbaya these 15-minutes of freedom cities/neighborhoods will be!

People already know what a mess Portland is in, yet they are proposing to spend $750 million on a climate action plan.

Paris, with its mayor Anne Hidalgo and her advisor Carlos Moreno, has been pushing the idea since 2020 – promote active mobility instead of cars. Car speed is 30 km/hr., cars are banned along the Seine one Sunday each month, and bike lanes will be installed on every street by 2024.

What a kumbaya these 15-minutes of freedom cities/neighborhoods will be! Mixed-used developments, no parking, no cars, residences (notice how they don't call them apartments or homes), schools, shops, doctors, restaurants stand side by side in "diverse neighborhoods." The new model for the larger city has "devolved into small, repeating parts."

But America is a "suburban nation" and WEF recognizes that the concept is not a good fit. Perhaps Manhattan or Brooklyn, parts of Boston and Cambridge, but the rest of America can only have the 15-minute city by car.

What about the non-affluent neighborhoods where theft and crime are rampant, where businesses are closing shops and leaving? Where do they fit in the new grand scheme of reengineering humanity?

What about small towns spread out and villages? How are they going to parcel them out? And who is policing the comings and goings of residents and administering fines? And how is every 'climate lockdown zone' going to acquire doctors, hospitals, clinics, cinemas, museums, theatres, operas, universities, schools.

Globalists have another shock event planned in pursuit of the 'Four Ds': Digitization, Dehumanization, Destruction and Depopulation

2024 will make 2023 look like a walk in the park but we can make it through the storm if we hold onto our humanity and faith in God

The convergence of multiple red-alert warnings is staring us in the face, all pointing to a major "event" of some type in the upcoming weeks or months.

Whatever it is, this new catastrophe will hasten the collapse of the old world system, a collapse of economies and political structures that is already underway, paving the way for the Great Reset or, as some call it, the New World Order. I call it the beast system.

Predicting the timing of such an event is impossible but I do believe we are looking at a major shock event happening roughly within the next three to nine months, a year at most.

The reason is simple. The billionaire globalist oligarchs desire to bring about a situation which involves digitization (of money and human beings), dehumanization (humans replaced by transhuman hybrids), destruction (of all cultural norms, male/female genders, the ability to reproduce without technology, etc.) and depopulation (of those deemed "useless eaters"). These are the "Four Ds" needed to bring about the total control that globalist technocrats seek to extend over all human behavior in a restructured world run by artificial intelligence and based on the elimination of all fossil fuel usage by the common man (non-oligarchs). If only the oligarchs have access to fossil fuels and only the oligarchs are allowed to reproduce and enjoy freedom of speech, what you end up with is a one-world slave state. And that's exactly the goal.

So the Four Ds are used to get to the fifth and final D, which is dystopia. In the eyes of the globalist predator class, they're reaching for their utopia, but for the rest of us, it will be a living hell, a dystopia.

These globalist oligarchs were only able to destroy so much of the old world order with Covid and they need another big crisis event to finish the job of achieving all their dystopian goals, which are encompassed in the Agenda 2030 Sustainable Development Goals. They've played language games, reminiscent of Orwellian newspeak, to make us think the SDGs will bring about utopia. In reality, the masses will be ushered into the nightmare of dystopia.

If the globalists continue to pressure their minions in national and state capitols to enact their green new deals and “net zero” campaigns, the masses will eventually wake up and come for these globalists. That awakening has already begun, and that is why it is urgent that they escalate a full-blown World War III scenario, which includes famine and shortages, as soon as they possibly can.

The window is closing on the King Charles-initiated “Great Reset” and so it’s time to double down on destruction and depopulation. If they don’t, they will never get to full digitization and dehumanization, the end of human history, as Yuval Harari explains in the video below.

Russia is an obstacle to their plans for a truly one-world system. Not because of Putin being any kind of hero, but because of the Russian people and their will to survive under a purely Russian leader. They will not accept a World Economic Forum puppet like the U.S., Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Europe have accepted to rule over them. They don’t mind an authoritarian strong man but it must be a real Russian who is in charge.

Russia and Putin may be on board with digitization, but not with the other three Ds – dehumanization, destruction of all cultural norms, and depopulation, largely due to the strong influence of the Russian Orthodox Church, which remains much more traditional in its thinking than the Roman Catholic Church.

If I’m right and the globalist oligarchs have another shock event planned within the next three to nine months, that means the window for preparedness is also closing.

Those caught off guard by what is coming will find themselves completely dependent on exactly the wrong people for their survival. They will be at the mercy of the globalist cartel. Since this is a predator class of psychopaths, you do not want to be dependent on them for anything.

If viewed in a vacuum, the headlines of today would not be sending up red flags of warning. But when you look at them in totality, it becomes clear something big is going down that will forever reshuffle the deck of global power and change our outlook going forward.

The bottom line is that this is no time for normalcy bias.

We are already in the beginning stages of World War III with Russia in Eastern Europe, in Syria, and with Africa and Asia getting ready to explode as well.

I think it’s inevitable that World War III continues to escalate into the outbreak of direct day-to-day warfare between the world’s two major nuclear powers, roughly divided by East and West, with the U.S./NATO/Australia/Japan/South Korea on one side, and Russia/China/Iran/North Korea on the other side.

The U.S. and Great Britain along with the rest of their NATO vassal states procured this war with Russia by continually expanding the NATO military alliance eastward into Russia’s back yard. NATO politicians and commanders have been talking about their “open door policy” for at least 20 years, and this is like pouring salt into an open wound as it relates to Russia and its history of being invaded from the west. In 2008, NATO invited Ukraine into the alliance pending it meeting certain criteria and that was really the last straw. Ever since that overture, it was just a matter of time before Russia sent its forces into Ukraine. It’s no different than when Israel periodically sends its forces into Palestinian territories to “clean out” those areas of rockets, weapons and ammunition dumps. You’d be surprised at how many conservatives understand Israel's need to live amongst its Palestinian cousins without those cousins being armed to the teeth, yet they do not understand the same concept applies to Russia and Ukraine.

As the nations line up and draw the battle lines for World War III, India is the wildcard. This is not the old India. It is the fastest-growing nation, it has a lot of technical expertise, and it can field a huge army. It could make the difference in who wins World War III depending which side it decides to join.

Once World War III ratchets up, we're looking at a nationwide draft in the U.S. heading into an election year, which means the potential outbreak of civil war on U.S. soil at the same time we're involved in world war.

Then you're looking at cyberattacks, possible false-flag attacks, a new and scarier pandemic, a historic famine and supply-chain disruptions exacerbated by war, or some combination of the above, all brought on by an intensifying World War III.

This will not be a time for weak Christians or feeble-minded Westerners used to their entertainment and creature comforts.

The way things are going, I foresee a combination of at least three or four of the above scenarios taking place simultaneously. Think about the impact that would have on everyday society.

Below are some of the data points pointing toward a catastrophic event that will forever change the world. (Note: *These were researched and recently discussed by myself and Brannon Howse on his show, Brannon Howse Live).

- CNN: Nuclear activity highest in years at sites in China, Russia and U.S.
- Smoke seen rising from Idaho national lab which tests advanced nuclear weaponry.
- Pope Francis says world is on brink of nuclear war, worst since 1962.
- Increasing reports of U.S. war planes training overhead coming in from all over the country.
- FEMA sets October 4 nationwide emergency alert test.
- U.S. orders $290 million worth of anti-radiation sickness tablets.
- New York City broadcast public service ads on how to survive a nuclear attack.
- Russia's Defense Minister stated over the weekend that attacks are taking place on Russian territory outside the special operations zone. Russia now sees the U.S. and Great Britain as parties to the current war and will allow itself to attack decision-making centers in the Ukraine. That would presumably include Ukrainian president Zelensky. Imagine if Russia took him out and how the West would exploit that in terms of propagandist messaging.
- King Charles meeting with French President Macron in Paris last Wednesday through Friday. Macron skipped the UN meeting in New York in order to meet with the King. (Charles is the Father of the global sustainable development movement and a major proponent of eugenics and depopulation. I wrote about this on my Substack last week.)
- Deagel Corp., which has ties to the CIA, predicted in 2014 that the U.S. would lose 68.5 percent of its population by the end of 2025; the U.K. would lose over 75 percent and most Western European nations would also lose 30 to 50 percent.
- Free speech and political dissent are under attack in formerly free nations. These are the nations we once thought were the good guys – the U.S., Canada, E.U., U.K., Australia and New Zealand. All are cracking down in very visible ways on free speech. Pastors and journalists (such as Pastor Artur Powlowski in Canada and journalists Owen Shroyer and Stephen Horn in the U.S.) are being jailed for simply expressing ideas that challenge the government-mass media narratives. Jucinda Ardern, the former prime minister of New Zealand, has become the new face of global censorship, and she is being given the biggest platforms to spout her authoritarian ideas, speaking last week before the U.N. General Assembly on the need to crack down on “disinformation,” which of course is all speech that globalists don’t agree with on climate change, war in Ukraine, Covid and vaccines, etc. She has been rewarded for her evil ideas with not one but two fellowships at Harvard University.

- Poland becomes first NATO member, other than Hungary, to question the open-ended funding of Ukraine’s corrupt government in its border dispute with Russia. Poland wants to ‘cool down’ Ukraine. If the U.S. and Great Britain sense that the coalition of the willing is starting to break up, they will accelerate the attacks on Russian territory in an effort to “strike while the iron is hot.”
- VP Kamala Harris becomes Biden’s “Gun Czar” as the War on the Second Amendment throttles into overdrive. The Biden administration announced Thursday that Harris will oversee the first-ever White House Office of Gun Violence Prevention. Harris will be in charge of enforcing current laws and collaborating with state and local officials to push anti-gun measures at every level.
- Several big banks including Wells Fargo and Bank of America announced plans to close 38 bank branches in and around New York City by the end of the year.

Bottom line: War is coming, along with all of its nasty byproducts. This will include growing inflation and de-dollarization, shortages of food, fuel and basic medications, and an intensifying assault on all forms of free of speech, freedom of religion, freedom of movement, assembly, the Second Amendment, etc. We must resist this assault on our freedoms, while knowing that no man or human organization is coming to our rescue. We bear responsibility for the safety and security of our families. Anyone still looking for a quick fix brought on by the voting booth is not paying attention to the signs and signals. We will not get to November 2024 without experiencing another major event, triggered by the globalists and their minions who share the Luciferian hatred of God’s crowning achievement — human life created in His image. We must stand strong in our convictions, both political and religious, and refuse to bow to the beast system, while knowing that our Father in heaven holds the ultimate trump card and will bring down this network of evil in His timing and on His schedule.

‘We Will Defend Our Children’: Canadian Parents Take To Streets Nationwide To Protest LGBT Indoctrination In Schools

September 25, 2023

On September 20, a beautiful sunny day in Canada, thousands of protestors and counter-protestors flooded the streets of various Canadian cities. Flags and signs clashed as some promoted “parental rights” and others promoted “trans rights.” As tensions rose, the police presence grew heavy. Yelling and arguments ensued, with some participants leaving in handcuffs. “I see a mix of absolute hatred and bigotry,” some counter-protestors shared. Others classified the initial protest as “a display of hatred.”

Who are these “hateful” protestors? Reportedly, they are angry parents, trying to protect their children from being sexualized through LGBT indoctrination in local educational institutions.

“1 Million March for Children” was coordinated by Ottawa resident Kamel El-Cheikh. He said in a speech, “We’re just starting. September 20 will be families’ and kids’ liberation day. We will be relentless. We will be unapologetic. From Victoria, Edmonton, Montreal, [to] Ottawa we will defend our children and parents’ rights at all costs. Remember, we are the powerful majority. We are one nation under God. God, keep our land glorious and free.”

Many of the participants had this same message: “Let us raise our kids. We want to raise them.”

In response to the event, Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau posted, “Transphobia, homophobia, and biphobia have no place in this country.” Scout Gray, National Program Manager for SOGI 123, an LGBT educational resource center, claimed the protest revolved around “a lot of misinformation” on what is being taught in schools. But what the protestors want to make clear is that learning gender ideology has no place in the life of a child — regardless of what is being taught.

As reported by The Post Millennial, “The event attracted an impressive list of speakers: from Pastor Henry Hildebrandt, who was arrested and jailed for conducting church services in Aylmer, Ont. to Josh Alexander, the high school student who was expelled and then arrested for opposing boys in his Catholic school from using the girls’ washrooms. Former 700 Club host Laura-Lynn Tyler Thompson spoke,” as well as Pastor Nathan Pawlowski, who was arrested this week for violating COVID mandates.

Pawlowski’s son said at the march, “[The government and teacher unions] made a grave mistake uniting us finally to push back, that’s what they fear the most: unity.” He continued, “Government has no business in the education of children, none whatsoever. That decision rests with the parents and family. They have stepped too far.” He discussed how the “normalization of indoctrination ... always ends in tragedy.” For Pawlowski, what happens in Nazism and communism have “similarities [that] are uncanny with what we are seeing in Canada today.”

Similar battles are being fought in the U.S. between parents and school boards. But on September 20, the streets of Canada were full of protestors who sought to keep gender ideology out of schools, and El-Cheikh made it clear that this was only the beginning. He said, “We’re gonna bring Canadians together again, because Canadians have been protesting from coast to coast organically. ... We brought together Protestant Christians and Catholics and evangelicals and Muslims and then they’re coming together to protect Canada’s kids. Isn’t that lovely?”

In comments to The Washington Stand, Meg Kilgannon, senior fellow for Education Studies at Family Research Council, observed, “[Something] that surprised me about the coverage I saw was that the leader of the protests made a video statement on social media. [They challenged] the LGBTQ+ community not to counter protest the parents, because the parents would have to return the favor by protesting LGBTQ+ pride events. That seems to my American reading to be confrontational.”

She concluded, “It is really an attempt to not escalate the situation. I will be interested to see how these events are covered in Canada and how the public reacts.”
